

Contents

Preface	v
Foreword	ix
About the Authors	xix
1 Challenges to Family Business	1
Origin	1
Coming to China	3
Succession: The Challenge Facing Chinese Family Businesses	6
Strategic Transformation: Another Challenge	9
In China: When Succession Meets Transformation	11
Generation Gap Standing in the Way	16
To Succeed or Not: The Dilemma of the Second Generation	24
2 Richness Stands for Willfulness?: Why Does the “Wealthy Second Generation” Love the Financial Investment Industry?	31
The Second Generation’s Preference for Financial Investment	34
Why Is Financial Investment So Popular with the Second Generation?	40

Financial Investment as an Alternative	43
Cultivation of Interest	45
The Need for Cultivation and Edification of Time	50
Self-efficacy Is Crucial	52
3 "Family Culture": The Evergreen Cornerstone of Family Business	57
Two Systems: Family and Business	60
The Power of Family: Resolving Conflicts and Enhancing the Willingness to Take Over	62
Family Factors Influencing the Willingness to Take Over the Business	69
Regaining "Family Culture": Creating the Evergreen Gene of Family Business	73
A Good Example of "Family Culture" Inheritance: Lee Kum Kee, Thriving for Over Five Generations	75
4 "1.5 Generation" Entrepreneurial Succession	83
The Family Business Started by Mao Lixiang and His Wife Mao Zhongqun: Should I Go Back to Continue My Father's Business?	85
Father and Son Partnership: "Three-thirds Systems" Succession	86
Mao Zhongqun: Management Philosophy after Succession	89
Mao's Family Governance	92
The Future: Can Wealth Survive Three Generations?	105
5 The Common Agreement of the Xu Family	108
Xu Wanmao's Early Business Venture	111
When Xu Lixun Took over Huamao at a Critical Moment	113
Huamao's Strategic Development	116
The "Common Agreement"	124
The Future Road of Xu Family's Third Generation	127

6	Family Managing Family Business	135
	The Distribution of Family Wealth	136
	"Pocket Theory"	139
	"Separating the Family Without Dividing the Property" Theory	142
	Family Wealth: Two Different Approaches	147
7	From "De-familization" to "Building a Family-based Culture"	157
	The Origin of Neoglory	159
	Introduction of Professional Managers	166
	Yu Jiangbo Is the Choice in Crisis	169
	Reform, Transformation, and Upgrade	175
	Big Family System	180
8	Family CEO or Professional CEO?	187
	Family CEO vs. Professional CEO	188
	More Professional CEOs Are Needed in the Future	193
	Concerns of the Second Generation	195
	Alternative Inheritance Path	198
	Succession Planning	200
9	Succession of Professional Managers	203
	The Founder of Midea, He Xiangjian	204
	Delegating Power to Business Divisions and Training Managers	205
	Fang Hongbo's Experience in Midea	208
	The First Step of Succession: Midea Electric Appliances	210
	Fluctuation in Sales and Seeking for Transformation	214
	The Second Step of Succession: Midea Group	216
	Implementing the Equity Incentive System for Senior Executives	220
	Challenges Faced by Fang Hongbo	223

10	Mother-to-daughter Succession in Boosting Brand Internationalization	229
	Family Passion and Inheritance of Silk	231
	Difficulties Surrounding the Business Succession by Daughter & Son-in-law	236
	Industrial Upgrading	239
	Chinese Brand, Made in France	242
	Family Relations: Mother, Daughters, & Sons-in-Law	246
	Husband and Wife as a Team	253
11	Daughter Succeeds Father as the Pioneer of Strategic Transformation	257
	"Personalization"	259
	Organizational Structure Reengineering Contributes to Business Model Transformation	263
	Daughter Volunteers to Take over the Business and Works Alongside Father to Transform It	267
	Embracing the Internet	275
	The Implementation of Strategy: Challenges and Reflections	277
	Enterprise Heritage: The Succession Is Still on the Way	279
12	When Succession Meets Transformation	283
	Four Models of Family Business Succession	284
	Two Ways of Equity Distribution within the Family	295
	Four Ways of Selecting Successors in Family Business Management	300
	Succession and Transformation Side by Side	305
13	Still on the Way	333
	Acknowledgements	337
	Index	339