Contents

Chapter 1 What is play? 1
Introduction 1
What is play? 2
Play memories 5
Intergenerational play memories 14
Supporting school play 21
Conclusion 22
Acknowledgements 23
References 23

Chapter 2 Children's perspectives on play 27
Introduction 27
Understanding infants' and children's perspectives 28
What children say about their play 34
Creating the conditions for gaining the child's perspective 38
Interpreting data on children's perspective 44
Conclusion 45
References 45

Chapter 3 Families at play 48
Introduction 48
Historical understanding of play 50
Learning to play 51
Conclusion 62
Acknowledgements 62
References 62

Chapter 4 Digital play and digital tools to support learning 63
Introduction 63
Infants' and children's technological contexts 65
Technological toys for supporting children's play 68
Technologies environments 72

The program in action 78
Conclusion 89
Acknowledgements 89
References 89

Chapter 5 Playing in schools 92
Introduction 92
How do we support play in schools? 93
Developmental education: A case study from the Netherlands 96
A play-based inquiry approach in schools that supports learning the content of the Australian Curriculum 103
Practical examples of support for a play-based approach in schools 106
Conclusion 108
References 108

Chapter 6 Lenses on play: Classical and developmental theories of play 111
Introduction 111
Analysing play observations 114
Classical theories of play 115
Developmental theories of play 119
Critiques of developmental models of play 122
Conclusion 123
References 123

Chapter 7 Lenses on play: Post-structuralist analyses of children's play 125
Introduction 125
Post-structuralist theory of play 125
Play in undemocratic institutions 136
Conclusion 142
References 142

Chapter 8 Lenses on play: Cultural-historical conceptions of play 144
Introduction 144
Cultural-historical understanding of play 144
Cultural-historical models of play 159
Conclusion 178
Acknowledgements 178
References 179

Chapter 9 Play in the curriculum 181
Introduction 181
Analysing play in the curriculum 184
The elasticity of curricula: A case example from Australia 186
A socio-cultural curriculum: A case example from New Zealand 188
Reggio Emilia, Italy 191

The playing learning child: A case example from Sweden 192
Teaching in play-based programs 196
Conclusion 203
Acknowledgements 203
References 203

Chapter 10 Planning for play development 207
Introduction 207
The relationship between play, learning and development 209
Challenges for play, learning and development 211
Theory of mind and play 213
Play and imagination 214
Planning to develop play complexity 216
Planning play environments 218
Supporting the youngest players: Building relationships in play 221
Planning for the development of multiliteracies through play:
A case example 224
Conclusion 231
References 231

Chapter 11 Assessment through, of and for play 235
Introduction 235
Assessment through play 237
Assessment of play 242
Assessment for play 246
What theory drives your play practices? 248
Self-assessment of play practice: What theory drives your beliefs? 250
Conclusion 256
Acknowledgements 256
References 256

Chapter 12 Being a play activist 258
Introduction 258
Advocating for play 259
Discourses 261
Taking a position: Banning play 262
Taking a position: School playground play 264
Play as a leading activity in the early years 266
Conclusion 269
References 269

Index 271