

CONTENTS

List of illustrations	ix
Preface	xi
Acknowledgements	xiii
1 Rationale: ethics for guiding environmental behaviours and practices	1
1.1 Reasoning through ethics	1
1.2 Environmental values	2
1.3 Reframing contemporary environmental issues	5
1.4 Broader perspectives	7
1.5 Psychological insights and sustainable practices	8
1.6 Social power and environmental actions	9
1.7 Behavioural change	10
1.8 The whole picture: an integrated approach	11
2 Ethical reasoning	14
2.1 The domain of ethics	14
2.1.1 Meta-ethics	15
2.1.2 Normative ethics	17
2.1.3 Applied ethics	17
2.2 Utilitarianisms	19
2.2.1 Challenges to utilitarianism	20
2.2.2 Concluding comments on utilitarianism	27
2.3 Rights-based ethics (deontology)	27
2.3.1 Criticisms of deontology	32
2.3.2 Environmental justice	35
2.3.3 Concluding comments on deontology	36

2.4	Virtue theories	37
2.4.1	Criticisms of virtue theory	41
2.4.2	Concluding comments on virtue theory	43
2.5	A defence of ethics	44
3	Conflicting values: anthropocentric, biocentric and ecocentric ethics	48
3.1	Anthropocentric ethics	49
3.1.1	The Western tradition of anthropocentrism	49
3.1.2	Immanuel Kant and secular arguments for valuing other species	52
3.1.3	Transforming anthropocentric values into behaviours	54
3.2	Biocentric ethics	56
3.2.1	Questioning biological hierarchies	56
3.2.2	Albert Schweitzer and reverence for life	59
3.2.3	Popular expressions of biocentrism	62
3.3	Ecocentric ethics	65
3.3.1	Aldo Leopold and the Land Ethic	66
3.3.2	Popular expressions of ecocentrism	70
4	Shallow, deep and social ecologies	75
4.1	Arne Naess and notions of 'shallow' and 'deep' environmental ethics	76
4.1.1	Shallow ecology	77
4.1.2	Deep ecology	79
4.1.3	Challenges and critiques of deep ecology	82
4.2	Murray Bookchin and social ecology	85
4.2.1	Challenges and critiques of social ecology	88
4.2.2	Popular expressions of biospherism	90
4.3	Appropriate and inappropriate technologies	93
4.3.1	Ernst Schumacher and 'intermediate' technologies	93
4.3.2	Appropriate technologies and the biospheric view	94
4.3.3	Technological fixes as alternatives to behavioural change	95
5	Environmental behavioural change and the psychology of influence	102
5.1	Some fundamentals of attitude and behaviour change theories	104
5.1.1	Dual process theory	105
5.1.2	Framing	108
5.1.3	Framing and narrative in An Inconvenient Truth	109
5.1.4	Framing, biases and heuristics	112
5.2	Psychosocial barriers to environmental behaviour change	114
5.2.1	Knowledge	114

5.2.2	Emotional engagement	120
5.2.3	Existing attitudes, values and wants	123
5.2.4	Psychological denial	127
5.2.5	Social influence: norms, authority and trust	133
5.2.6	Enablers	139
5.2.7	Habits	139
5.3	Conclusion	144
6	The practical and moral limitations of the psychology of influence	152
6.1	Social marketing and nudge	152
6.1.1	Social marketing	152
6.1.2	Nudge	156
6.2	Challenges to using psychological influence (I): the ethics of nudge	159
6.2.1	Undermining autonomy in everyday choices	159
6.2.2	Undermining self-development	162
6.2.3	Undermining the individual's relationship with government	163
6.2.4	Issues of fairness	164
6.3	Challenges to using psychological influence (II): 'Common Cause'	164
6.3.1	Message tailoring	165
6.3.2	Spillover	168
6.3.3	Segmentation	172
6.3.4	Ideology	172
6.4	Conclusion: The case for collectivist frame	173
7	Economic change: corporations and environmental responsibility	179
7.1	Introduction	179
7.2	Capitalism: a brief introduction	181
7.3	The corporation	185
7.4	Milton Friedman and the rise of corporocentrism	187
7.5	Critics of Friedman	189
7.5.1	Friedman, CSR and the role of stakeholders	189
7.5.2	Corporations as non-virtuous agents	191
7.6	Corporate citizenship	194
7.7	Corporate environmentalism	195
7.7.1	Monetarising the environment: carbon credits	196
7.7.2	Ethical consumption	197
7.8	Ecologically responsible alternatives	198
7.9	Conclusion	200

8	Constitutional political change: Green votes and Green representation	204
	8.1 Introduction	204
	8.2 Politics and the state: the basics	204
	8.3 Green politics and state institutions	206
	8.4 State effectiveness and legitimacy	213
	8.5 Constitutional green politics	214
	8.6 Specialist green parties	217
	8.7 Democratic state methods of behavioural change	220
	8.8 Non-democracies and environmental policy	222
	8.9 Evaluating constitutionalism	224
	8.10 Constitutionalism and non-constitutionalism	227
	8.11 Conclusion	228
9	Non-constitutional political change: Green direct action, civil disobedience and symbolic activity	232
	9.1 Introduction	232
	9.2 Green direct action and civil disobedience	234
	9.2.1 Diversity	237
	9.2.2 Immediacy and empowerment	238
	9.2.3 Satisfaction	239
	9.2.4 Demoi-cratic	240
	9.2.5 Criticism and replies	240
	9.3 Combining direct action and constitutional action	242
	9.4 Symbolic action	243
	9.5 Eco-terrorism	246
	9.6 Organisation: social networks and electronic communications	250
	9.7 Lifestyles	253
	9.7.1 Ecological communes	253
	9.7.2 Lifestyles and the community	254
	9.8 Conclusion	255
10	Conclusion: integration without reduction	261
	10.1 Coexistence at every scale	261
	10.2 Virtues and empowerment	263
	10.3 Promoting economic and political change	267
	Appendix: reflections on teaching	269
	Index	274