

Contents

Table of cases and other materials	ix
Table of international and regional treaties and other instruments	xiii
List of frequently used abbreviations	xviii
Preface	xxi
Acknowledgements	xxii
1 Introduction	1
1.1 Basic premises of this book	4
1.2 Guiding threads, concepts, and caveats	5
1.3 The academic and societal contribution of this book	7
1.4 The contribution of this book to existing literature	8
1.5 Research scope and limitations	11
1.6 Book outline	13
2 From environmental change to human displacement	15
2.1 People on the move	16
2.2 The vulnerability token of environmental change	21
2.3 Environmental displacement as a human rights issue	31
2.4 A holistic approach to protection: pre-in-post displacement phases	36
2.5 Environmentally displaced persons: the objective trump	40
2.6 The environmental displacement protection paradox	43
2.7 Conclusion	43
3 Protection obligations of states under international human rights law and related instruments	45
3.1 Determining home state obligations: a survey of illustrative examples	45

3.2	Analogy of protection obligations for EDPs: the underlying duty to prevent human rights violations	65
3.3	Explicit recognition of the duty of states to protect from displacement	75
3.4	Implicit recognition of the duty of states to protect from displacement	90
3.5	Conclusion	113
4	Status and protection obligations of states under international refugee law	116
4.1	Determining host states' obligations	116
4.2	Realities and limits of states' obligations under the international protection system	135
4.3	Enhancing the protection of persons at the regional level	139
4.4	The principle of non-refoulement: a common ground of protection	146
4.5	Conclusion	150
5	Consolidating protection for environmental displacement	152
5.1	Europe's normative power for protecting EDPs	152
5.2	Consolidating a proactive approach to protection for EDPs	156
5.3	Consolidating a reactive approach to protection for EDPs	179
5.4	(Re)Conceptualising protection of EDPs: protection as a dynamic guiding concept	220
5.5	Conclusion	223
6	Conclusion	224
6.1	The increasing legal recognition of environmentally displaced persons	224
6.2	Protection obligations from cross-border environmental displacement arise from legal cumulative effects	225
6.3	Protection obligations after cross-border environmental displacement arise contextually	227
6.4	Towards a new human rights-based protection paradigm for environmental displacement	229
	Bibliography	232
	Index	252